

Tocks Project Hits Roadblock; Fund Bill Sought First

By Robert S. Van Fleet
Chief, Ottawa News Service
WASHINGTON — The campaign for Tocks Island National Recreation Area was jolted yesterday at the opening of long-awaited committee hearings when House Interior Chairman Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo., said the Delaware Valley project would have to stand in line behind his Land and Water Conservation Fund Act.

More than that, he and other committee members cautioned that there are nearly 100 similar projects for which federal funds are being sought.

Time and again Aspinall and other congressmen warned a hearing room full of Tocks Island supporters that they should not look for early approval.

Nixon said the moths, if uncontrolled, could destroy large areas of woodland by defoliating hardwood trees.

The Colorado Democrat said he wanted it "clearly understood" that the fund bill must be passed before "any other bill . . . especially the recreation bill . . . can be passed."

He said no money for recreation areas would be available until his bill is passed.

Aspinall's remarks caught Tocks Island supporters by surprise.

The recreation area is the second phase of a four-state project for Delaware River development between Stroudsburg and Port Jervis.

The Army Corps of Engineers is already proceeding with planning under a $250,000 appropriation for a 160-foot high dam at Tocks Island five miles north of Delaware Water Gap.

Revenues of the fund — envisioned at $90 million a year — would come principally from admission and user fees at federal parks and recreation areas.

Pushes Fund
Aspinall asked Tocks Island supporters to urge their congressmen to support the conservation fund as a means toward ultimate approval of the Delaware River program.

Frank W. Dressler, executive secretary of the Water Resources Assn., said later that he had not been aware of a connection between Aspinall's bill and the Tocks Island bills submitted by several Pennsylvania, New York, and New Jersey legislators in both houses.

Dressler, who appeared as one of the supporting witnesses, said he would undertake a new study of the Aspinall bill.

The parade of witnesses began yesterday with Udall, whose brother — Morris K. — a representative from Arizona, is a member of the committee.

Udall Support
The secretary said the Tocks Island Recreation Area had his support because it would serve 46 million people — 25 per cent of the nation's population — who live within 250 miles of it.

He said quick approval "was imperative" so that the two phases of the Delaware River project could be carried out on a coordinated time schedule.

He conceded the project would be "costly" but he did not give figures.

Col. R. C. Marshall, an Army representative who followed him thought original acquisition costs, estimated at $17 million in 1959 were perhaps $30 million today.

The colonel, who is assistant director of Civil Works for the Corps of Engineers' Atlantic Division said he used the $30 million figure "reluctantly" because it was not based on a thorough study. He said the cost might be more.

In response to a question, Col. Marshall said it would take about three months and a $15,000 study to produce reliable acquisition cost estimates.

Also testifying today in support of the bill were James P. Wright, executive director of the Delaware River Basin Commission; H. Mat Adams, representing Gov. Richard J. Hughes of New Jersey; Dr.

James B. Kelley, representing Mayor Robert Wagner of New York City; Robert A. Harrier, vice president of the Water Resources Assn.; William H. Wilcox, executive director of the Greater Philadelphia Movement; and others, some of them local government officials in areas to be included in the recreation project.

Schultz Opposes
The only opponent was Henry R. Schultz of Bayonne, N.J., owner of a summer property at Bushkill, Pa., a community to be inundated by the Tocks Island Reservoir.

Schultz, an excitable man, who clinched and waved his fists as he read a prepared statement, called the arguments in favor of the program "excuses."

He said the "excuses" were flood control, water supply and power generation, all of them "invalid."

He also said there was opposition to the project among residents of the Delaware Valley but that they were "afraid" to speak out.

Rep. Thomas C. Morris, presiding officer and chairman of the subcommittee conducting yesterday's hearing, asked whether there had been intimidation by any federal representative.

"Oh no sir," replied Schultz.

The hearing is scheduled to resume this morning with several more witnesses, including Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Pennsylvania secretary of Forests and Waters.

State Completes Pocono Spraying

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Agriculture Department reported Monday it has completed aerial spraying of 18,860 acres of Pocono Mountain woodland to destroy Gypsy moths.

The spraying began May 19 and covered six separate areas where Gypsy moth infestations had been discovered in Northampton, Monroe and Pike counties, according to Henry F. Nixon, director of the department's Bureau of Plant Industry.

The project is an annual program designed to eliminate the threat of Gypsy moths to hardwood trees.

Actors' Strike Ends In Raise

NEW YORK (AP) — The Broadway actors strike that closed only two matinee performances but threatened 16 other shows ended Monday in time for the evening curtains to go up.

Performers won a $12.50 weekly increase in minimum pay over a four year period. A spokesman for the theaters said producers "will hold the line on ticket prices."

U.S. Reds Win New Round

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist party gained another round Monday in its 14-year-old legal battle against registering as an instrument of world-wide communism.

The Supreme Court refused to review — and thus let stand — a U.S. Court of Appeals decision of last Dec. 17 which reversed on technical grounds a $120,000 fine against the party for failure to submit details of its membership and finances.

Panamanian Politico Shot

PANAMA (AP) — Roberto Arias, 45, prominent Panamanian politician and diplomat, was shot and critically wounded Monday by a disgruntled member of his own political party.

Arias is the husband of Dame Margot Fonteyn, the noted British ballerina, and the son of a former president of Panama.

The assailant was identified as Alfredo Jimenez, a member of Arias' Panamanista party.

Korean Brass Lose Jobs

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Chung Hee Park took another step Monday to pacify students threatening the stability of his South Korean regime. He ordered 576 officials, among them a deputy minister, suspended for corruption.

Park's announcement came on the heels of the death of a university freshman injured during demonstrations by students who were demanding Park's resignation on charges of dictatorship and government corruption. The student's death raised the possibility of new demonstrations.

Stock Market Loses Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted to another fairly sharp loss Monday. By the end of the session the Dow Jones industrial average was just a shade above the "magic" 800 level which it topped for the first time more than three months ago.

The Dow Industrials fell 5.72 to 800.31. It was on Feb. 28 that the average closed 800.14, topping the 800 level on a closing basis for the first time in history. It reached a historic closing high of 830.17 on May 7 and has been dropping irregularly ever since.

Volume was 4.01 million shares compared with 4.24 million during Friday's recovery. (See Stock List on Page 9)

Senate's $2.7 Million Hits Snag In State House

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House refused Monday to concur in Senate amendments to two major administration programs including the $2.7 million added to the giant billion dollar general appropriations bill for fiscal 1964-65.

The action set the stage for creation of joint Senate-House conference committees to work out the differences.

The other bill was the administration program for reform of Pennsylvania's land condemnation laws allowing the state to take over private property for public use.

The Senate, driving for final adjournment this week, gave unanimous approval to both bills in an hour-long afternoon session. The appropriations measure, increased from $1,069 billion to $1,072 billion by the Senate appropriations committee, provides the bulk of spending

'Copter Plucks Pilot From Reds

VIETNAMESE, Laos (AP) — A U.S. helicopter flew into the Red-held jungle in central Laos Monday and plucked out one of two U.S. Navy jet pilots downed over the weekend by Communist ground fire.

A heavy monsoon season cloud cover hampered the search for the other pilot.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Vientiane said the helicopter rescued Cmdr. Doyle W. Lynn of La Mesa, Calif., pilot of a 1,000-mile-an-hour Crusader jet fighter, and flew him back to the U.S. aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk in the South China Sea.

His plane was hit Sunday while flying escort for other Navy jets on reconnaissance missions being made at the request of Prince Souvanna Phouma, the Laotian premier.

There was no word on the air search for Lt. Charles F. Klusmann, 30, father of two, who was shot down Saturday in an unarmed reconnaissance plane, also a Crusader jet.

Klusmann was seen to parachute after his plane was hit. Accompanying aircraft flew cover for him while he faded into the jungle to get out of the reach of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao forces that have overrun the area around the Plain des Jarres, the Laotian battleground.

Red China charged that a flight of four U.S. jets fired two rockets Sunday at Khang Khay, the Plain des Jarres headquarters of the Pathet Lao.

Reliable sources in Vientiane said that Laotian air force F-73 fighter-bombers armed are flying cover for the U.S. reconnaissance planes. Souvanna's neutralist government ordered the Laotian planes into action after consultations with U.S. Embassy officials in the wake of the loss of the two jets.

Rights Debate

Windy Dixie Target For Senate Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — The clock started ticking Monday on a move aimed at shutting off the three-month Senate debate on civil rights.

A cloture petition was filed providing automatically for a vote one hour after the Senate convenes Wednesday.

The Senate agreed last Saturday to devote Tuesday's session to preliminary voting on three Republican — sponsored amendments to the civil rights bill that has been blocked by delays of Southern speeches since March 9.

Wednesday's vote will determine whether Democratic and Republican leaders have been able to muster the two-thirds majority needed to invoke cloture. Under that rule further debate on the bill and all amendments would be limited to one hour for each senator.

The leader said that if Wednesday's effort fails another attempt will be made in a week or so.

If it is successful, it will be the first time since the rule was adopted in 1917 that it has been brought to bear in a civil rights battle.

The cloture petition filed by Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana bore the signatures of 27 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, front-running contender for the Republican presidential nomination, repeated Monday that he is against cloture as a matter of principle. He was asked if he would vote for the civil rights bill.

"I have said all along," he replied, "that if the bill in its final form is acceptable I will vote for it."

'Stop Barry' Drive Fizzles; GOP Governors No Hurdle

Ike Jabs LBJ's War On Poverty

CLEVELAND (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower urged the states Monday night to wield their unused power to amend the Constitution to require that federal budgets be balanced at least every two years.

This, he said, would be a matter of some wisdom and help arrest what the former president viewed as a disturbing concentration of power in Washington.

Eisenhower deplored the bigness of government, took a swipe at President Johnson's war on poverty, and warned that in this century there has been a noticeable breaching of barricades erected by the Founding Fathers "against the propensity within us to destroy liberty."

Eisenhower was guest of honor and main speaker at a dinner at the National Conference of Governors.

Eisenhower told the nation's governors that "our best protection against bigger government in Washington is the states."

Among other things, he proposed that states modernize their constitutions and raise the pay of legislators. Some of the latter, he said, get the equivalent of $3 a day, "which works out, younger friends remind me, to something less than babysitters get for an evening's work."

Eisenhower said that "the so-called war on poverty" is a case in point that the better the states do their jobs, the better the chance that the federal government will cooperate properly with them and stop trying to dominate programs requiring federal help.

Switching to a different related field, the former president said the states have a national power of monumental significance which they never have used — the power to compel Congress to call a convention to propose amendments to the U.S. Constitution when two-thirds of the state legislatures seek such action.

Goldwater Poses With Scranton

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Son, Barry Goldwater arrived at the National Governors' Conference Monday night and found that political fighting over attempts to block his path to the Republican presidential nomination had subsided.

The Arizona senator, who is rushing along toward the party prize, ruled out any summit session here with top Republican leaders, candidates and possible candidates for the nomination.

Instead, Goldwater said he would return to Washington for Tuesday's Senate battle on the civil rights bill.

It apparently was former President Dwight D. Eisenhower who quashed what might have been a final effort to put together a stop-Goldwater drive at the conference. And it was to attend a dinner where Eisenhower spoke that Goldwater flew in from Washington.

Eisenhower sat in on a session between 15 of the 16 Republican governors. Participants said talk touched on the obvious — politics, candidates, issues, unity, rift.

In other political maneuvering over the GOP nomination, a declaration of availability for the nomination by Scranton amounted to that and little more.

Gov. John Anderson Jr. of Kansas, conference chairman, said "we agreed that the Republican party and Republicans nationally are bigger than any individual."

An aide to one governor reported that Goldwater's name was mentioned and Eisenhower was told that with the senator at the top of the ticket the Republicans might face disaster in some of the big states, such as New York, Ohio and Illinois.

Nevertheless, one informant said Eisenhower believed that Republicans should unite behind the man who is so far ahead in the drive to the nomination.

Goldwater slipped into convention headquarters through a garage entrance. But he received an ovation and was caught up in a throng as he tried to greet delegates.

The Arizona senator also posed for pictures with Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, said to be available for a genuine nomination draft.

Goldwater told reporters his convention delegates are coming along fine. The last 25 to 50 are the hardest to come by, he said.

The Arizona said he wasn't going to confer with anybody at the conference about the party nomination race.

Another conference visitor Monday was Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Greek Troops On Alert

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Greece put its armed forces on the alert again Monday night as renewed fears of a Turkish invasion of Cyprus swept the Greek capital.

There was no immediate reaction in Nicosia, where the Greek Cypriot government has maintained a state of alert in fear of a Turkish invasion that failed to materialize over the weekend.

Pressure from the United States was said to have halted any quick Turkish action.

In Ankara a source said Turkey was sending a note to President Johnson declaring that the only aim of a Turkish landing would be to preserve the present constitution and not to partition the island between its Greek and Turkish Cypriot populations.

It was the second time in three days that Greek forces had been placed on alert, and a government source declared, "We are on the eve of an outbreak of war."

The source said that according to information "Turkey is prepared to invade the island of Cyprus Monday night or early Tuesday."

Sources in Ankara have said that a warning note from John F. Kennedy and a hurried visit by Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, supreme commander of Allied forces in Europe, forestalled any immediate Turkish action.

Occupation Tax Exemption Passed

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Superior Court struck down an occupational tax enacted by Johnston because it contained an exemption. The court pointed to the constitutional requirement that all taxes must be uniform on the same classes of subjects.

HARRISBURG (AP) — The House voted Monday to legalize exemptions under local occupation taxes, but it knocked down two constitutional amendments backed by the Scranton administration.

Most of the day's House action centered on proposals to amend the state's basic charter, but it also approved appropriations for the Commonwealth's share of Appalachia study costs and maintaining roads in the Complanter Indian Reservation.

A unanimous vote was given to the bill which would write into the constitution an exemption of up to $1,000 of wages for persons subject to occupational taxes.

The amendment, which goes to the Senate for further action, was introduced after the state

Nixon Says Barry Backs GOP Stand

DETROIT (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon said Monday if Barry Goldwater gets the Republican presidential nomination the Arizona senator will back a platform that can win the united support of the GOP.

Nixon told newsmen that Goldwater has either modified or clarified his views on a number of major issues where he had differed with the Eisenhower-Nixon position.

The major exception, Nixon said, is civil rights.

"Whether the party is split (following the nomination) depends on the candidate and whether he has the leadership qualities to unite it," Nixon declared.

He said the GOP probably would be split if the candidate failed to support traditional Republican principles.

Pope Hits Reds For Modern Ills

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI said Monday there is "something deeply wrong" with the modern industrial system and he appealed to businessmen to strive for more social justice.

In one of the bluntest speeches of his year-old reign, the Roman Catholic ruler told Italian industrialists the captains of modern industry must overcome materialistic concepts of early capitalism and work for a "more peaceful, more brotherly society."

He blamed Communists and those who prize wealth above all else for many of the ills of modern society.

Addressing a private audience, Pope Paul warned against attempts to use religion merely as a way to "temper the passionate and easily subversive explosion of the working classes against the capitalist class."

He said religion must grow up "the fundamental deficiency of the system that pretends to consider as purely economic and automatically controllable the human relations deriving from the industrial phenomenon."

Lawrence Predicts Easy Win For LBJ

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Former Pennsylvania Gov. David L. Lawrence predicted Monday President Johnson would carry the Commonwealth "in a walk" Nov. 4, no matter who is the Republican candidate.

"Nobody is going to lick Johnson," said Lawrence, presently the chairman of the President's Commission on Equality in Housing.

Lawrence was in Cleveland for a one-day visit to the National Governors' Conference. He said he planned to go to Philadelphia for a meeting there Tuesday on housing.

"I never saw anyone with such election strength," Lawrence told a newsmen, referring to Johnson.

At the same time Lawrence had some harsh words for Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, who has been in the picture as a possible Republican presidential candidate.

"The Scranton draft is the phoniest thing since they sold the Brooklyn Bridge," Lawrence declared. He referred to Scranton's statements he not seeking the GOP nomination, but would accept a "sincere and honest draft."

"How could man not be a candidate, yet have his staff out working to get him the nomination?" asked Lawrence, adding: "It just shakes me to have a man without training or experience being considered for one of the biggest jobs in the world."

Turning back to Democratic problems, Lawrence predicted an ultimate amicable outcome of the present close contest for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination in Pennsylvania between Gov. Scranton and Sen. Michael A. Musmanno.

Space Cape Struck By Railroaders

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Construction at the nation's vast spaceport was halted Monday for the second time this year by striking railroad union pickets.

Idle were about 3,300 workmen on Air Force and National Aeronautics and Space Administration projects costing an estimated $215 million.

NASA appealed to the National Labor Relations Board to end the work stoppage and four NLRB representatives were to arrive at Cape Kennedy Monday night.

H. J. Smith Explains Hospital Cost Hikes

STROUDSBURG — Harry J. Smith, administrator of General Hospital of Monroe County, told greater Stroudsburg community leaders if they expect the quality of hospital care to continue to improve then they must be willing to pay the price of these improvements.

Addressing representatives of business, labor, hospitals, the medical profession, the Blue Cross Advisory Committee and other community leaders at the annual Spring Advisory Meeting held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Mr. Smith stated, "Since World War II, our hospitals have been desperately engaged in a three-legged race to keep up with medical progress, population growth and pay scales.

"They have added new departments and services, recovery rooms, intensive care units, heart and lung machines, countless new drugs, numerous new diagnostic devices and procedures, newer facilities in laboratories and greatly expanded emergency departments.

Mr. Smith continued, "All this has cost money. How much further do you wish your health services to progress? How far do we want to go? Do we really want a cure for cancer and an end to heart disease? Are you willing to underwrite the new hospital and medical facilities and services that will be involved? Your answers to such questions are of great importance to Blue Cross and Blue Shield. If we want the best hospital services, then we should be willing to pay what these services cost."

Milton E. Richards, director of hospital relations of Hospital Service Association of Northeastern Pennsylvania, served as chairman of the meeting and other Blue Cross officials who spoke at the meeting were George R. Dunn, special enrollment representative and James P. Rayball, public relations director.

Mr. Richards spoke briefly on the historical position of Blue Cross in the community. He urged the group to become aware of the rapidly changing scene in the field of hospital care and outlined the various ways in which Blue Cross is attempting to control costs.

Among those listed were Physicians Review Committees, Hospital Admission and Discharge Committees, recertification by the doctor when the patient requires more than 30 days of hospital care and visiting nurse care in the home.

"Some of these projects are operating very successfully," he noted, "while others are not. Some, such as visiting nurse care in the home, are still in the trial stage."

Mr. Dunn outlined various attempts by insurance companies in different parts of the country to "disenfranchise" Blue Cross plans.

He explained that in certain areas the insurance industry is actively campaigning against Blue Cross in an attempt to have legislative action taken to withdraw such Blue Cross advantages as special contracts with hospitals and a non-profit tax free status.

"Concerted efforts are being conducted to make Blue Cross just another insurance company," he said. "The most prominent of these actions have taken place in Massachusetts, Maine, New Jersey and in Pittsburgh where the insurance industry has run full page newspaper ads endorsing taxation of the Blue Cross building there.

"Any success in these attempts, of course, means additional costs for Blue Cross subscribers. It is unfortunate this is taking place and what is equally unfortunate is that the task of paying hospital bills has now become a competitive business," he added.

Half Of United States' Labor Wears Blue Collars

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — "Blue collar" workers make up just under 50 percent of the U.S. work force, and are followed closely by "white collar" workers at 44 percent. Farm workers constitute a relatively small 7 percent of the work force, according to a Congressional Quarterly study.

Based on Census Data, including the new Census Congressional Data Book, CQ classified and then added up the 17 major types of employment listed by the Census for each state and Congressional district.

"Blue Collar" Employment
"Blue collar" workers, according to the CQ definition, include all craftsmen, foremen, operatives, service workers, private household workers and laborers (except farm laborers). At the time of the 1960 Census, 29,887,758 persons were so employed.

The district with the highest percentage of "blue collar" workers is the California 21st, in Central Los Angeles. It has 74.1 percent "blue collar" workers, compared to 72.1 percent in the New York 18th, next on the list. Perhaps significantly, both these districts are represented by Negro Congressmen — the California 21st by Rep. Augustus F. Hawkins (D) and the New York 18th by Rep. Adam C. Powell (D).

Of the 31 top "blue collar" districts in the country, 14 were found to be in the East, 8 in the Midwest, 8 in the South and only 1 in the West. Of the 31, 29 send Democratic Representatives to Congress, and only 2 send Republicans.

"White Collar" Areas
All professional, technical, clerical and sales workers and all managers, officials and proprietors were classified as "white collar" workers. The 1960 national total for this type of employment was 26,587,834, a few million below the "blue collar" total.

Rep. John V. Lindsay (R) represents the New York 17th District (Manhattan-East Side), the so-called "silk-stocking" district which has 74.1 percent "white collar" workers, the highest percentage of any district. This district is adjacent to the second-ranking "blue collar" district represented by Powell.

The Virginia 10th District (suburban Washington, D. C.) placed second with 71.5 percent "white collar" workers — many of them Government employees. It is represented by Joel T. Broyhill (R).

Republicans outnumber Democrats, 21-9, among Congressmen from the top 30 "white collar" districts. These districts are distributed 13 to the East, 10 to the West, 5 to the Midwest and 2 to the South, almost all of them in center-city or suburban areas.

Farm Employment
A relatively small total of 4,256,734 Americans were found to be working on farms. The farm total included all farmers, farm managers, farm foremen and farm laborers plus farm-employed truck drivers, mechanics and bookkeepers, persons engaged in crop dusting and landscape gardeners.

In addition to the steadily declining farm population of the country, the small farm employment total may also be explained by the fact that persons in farm-related industries — processing, canning and the like — are listed as "blue collar" rather than farm workers.

The Mississippi 1st District, a sharecropper area in the Northwest part of the state, has 41.7 percent farm workers, highest percentage of any district in the country. Its Congressman is Rep. Jamie L. Whitten (D), a strong conservative.

Second highest on the farm employment list, with 37.6 percent, is the Minnesota 7th District (Northwest), represented by Olin Larsen (R).

Of the entire list of 30 top farm employment districts, 15 are represented by Democrats (mostly in the South) and 15 by Republicans. The regional distribution of the 30 was 12 Southern, 17 Midwestern, 1 Western.

Johnson Pooh Poohs Fears Federal Govt. Too Strong
SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — President Johnson said Monday the nation need have no fear that the federal government is getting too big for the good of the freedom-loving individual.

"Let us not call forth phantoms about what the future holds," the President told 220 graduates of Swarthmore College where he received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

"One of those fears is that the federal government has become a major menace to individual liberty. This is not so."

The President's remarks obviously were directed at the conservative view of government, the philosophy of the leading contender for the Republican presidential nomination, Sen. Barry Goldwater, of Arizona.

"The truth," Johnson asserted, "is that far from crushing the individual, government at its best liberates him from the enslaving forces of his environment."

The President said government neither subverts, undermines nor lessens freedom "through the Social Security system, or by bringing electricity to the farm, by controlling floods, by ending bank failures, by efforts to abate pollution in our streams, by providing school lunches for our children."

Johnson flew from Washington to neighboring Philadelphia where he was met by a crowd of 15,000. Many of them were school children.

THE SECOND DEADLIEST POISON
Tetanus results from the poison released by Clostridium tetani, a microscopic organism which thrives on lack of oxygen. These germs are present almost everywhere and once infected, over 63% of their victims die. Children and adults are equally in danger.

But, Tetanus Toxoid provides almost total immunization if a booster shot is taken every three or four years. The cost is low. Why gamble with your life? If you are not properly immunized against Tetanus, visit your physician as soon as possible. Any scratch or injury can cause Tetanus.

Hectic World In Short

BY FRANK PERRETTA
Record News Editor
Do you know what a sick, sick crowd is? It's a crowd that reacts like this:

Spectators yelled "jump!" at a man on a tenth-floor ledge, and boomed when police pulled him to safety.

Jose Figueroa, 32, teetered on the ledge of a building on upper Broadway for nearly an hour early Sunday. A crowd of about 500 gathered below, some shouting taunts.

Figueroa, who said he was going to jump because his wife and two children left him a year ago, spurned the pleas of two priests.

Patrolman Carmello Zumatto, speaking in Spanish, finally told Figueroa: "All right. You will not listen to us. Let us at least shake hands."

Figueroa hesitantly extended a hand. Zumatto grabbed it and pulled him to safety. He was taken to a hospital for observation.

The gals and guys at El Segundo High School are real high-flying swingers. If you don't believe it, just get an image of their after prom party:

It goes like this: "I'm honored to have you boys and girls aboard," the pilot said over the loud-speaker, "but I still think we should all be home in bed."

The high school graduates boomed and laughed. Thundering toward San Diego at more than 400 miles per hour in a jet plane they were twisting in the aisle.

So went the after prom flight of 84 seniors—a party designed as one senior put it to "really put El Segundo on the map."

"I'll claim a record for this group. It has traveled the longest distance of any high school group to come to see Washington — 8,000 miles."

Thus spoke Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall on Friday as he greeted a group of American Samoan high school students.

The 18 girls and 14 boys, who are between 14 and 18 years of age, are appearing at the New York World's Fair in a singing and dancing act.

This can be called the case of "stickup sanctity." The postoffice has ordered more stickum on the flaps of its stamped envelopes to "strengthen the sanctity of the mails."

The new envelopes with embossed five cent stamps will be available next January and will retail for six cents.

John Boak, a schoolmaster who shortened the Beagle hairdos of a score of shaggy-haired schoolboys, is due for either a reprimand or a medal.

Deputy Mayor Jim Smith urged the medal. But six governors of the school where it happened failed to say after a meeting just what they will recommend.

Boak ordered the boys to line up before a barber who gave them conventional haircuts.

Smith said the schoolmaster didn't go far enough. "I would have shaved them," Smith declared. "If the people of Carlisle don't back his action then we should all resign."

the only home that doesn't need ELECTRIC AIR CONDITIONING

There's no question about it. Some homes are naturally cooler than others, because of their location or the way they're constructed. But there isn't any home in this area that wouldn't be more comfortable and more pleasant with electric air conditioning . . . including yours.

Electric air conditioning cools your home. After all, that's the main reason you buy it. But it does more than that. It removes excess humidity, to keep the air fresh and dry. It filters out dust and dirt. In many cases, it even brings relief to those with allergies.

Electric air conditioning can make a big difference in your life this summer. Sure, it costs a little extra—but it's worth every penny. Visit your appliance dealer or air conditioning contractor to find out what it can do to make your home more inviting . . . more livable. But don't waste another day. Lots of other people will have the same idea!

Calhoun Backs Tocks Project

WASHINGTON, D.C. — John E. Calhoun, executive director of the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, will testify today before the House Subcommittee on National Parks that the proposed Tocks Island project would benefit one-third of the population of the country.

He submitted his prepared statement on behalf of the membership of the Vacation Bureau.

Excerpts from his statement are:

"Resort areas, such as our own, contribute to the growth of the state of Pennsylvania's second largest industry, tourism, which today is reaching new heights for (a) total number of people involved and (b) the favorable economic impact on those areas attracting the tourist dollar.

"Tourism and recreation are inextricably related to one another, contributing an estimated 43 billion dollars yearly to the gross national product, and there is every indication of sharply increasing these figures in the years ahead.

"In our view, the development of an outdoor recreation area for the crowded east would contribute substantially to the mental and physical health of thousands of American citizens.

"It would also create a most favorable economic impact on a large segment of our nation due to the vast number of recreational products that are associated, both directly and indirectly, with the tourist and recreation industries.

"We are advised that the Army Engineers, under existing laws, have to analyze any water projects by computing the benefit-cost ratio for the project.

"This ratio, we understand, is the relationship between the various average annual economic benefits expected to accrue from a project and its average annual cost in actual dollars.

"When the two are equal, the ratio is one to one. A project is generally justified, we understand, if the benefits are greater than the costs. The Tocks Island National Recreation Area project, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers study shows, has a benefit cost ratio of 2.2.

"That is, figured on an annual basis, every dollar of economic cost will produce $2.20 in benefits.

"In summary, the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc. believes (a) that the proposed Tocks Island National Recreation Area will provide the finest outdoor recreation area available to Americans anywhere in the United States and will meet the increasing demand of highly populated metropolitan areas for adequate recreational requirements; (b) "That this project will adequately meet the requirements for water storage and flood control, the latter having been proven totally inadequate in the Delaware River Basin by disastrous floods as recent as 1935.

"(c) "That the enormous 37 miles long reservoir will permit not only excellent water storage for industrial and normal living requirements but will also permit the development of substantial amounts of hydroelectric power that will unquestionably be needed as the economy expands in the years ahead.

"Accordingly, the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Inc., considering all these factors enumerated above, strongly urges those responsible for progress in our time to fully and wholeheartedly support the immediate authorization of the proposed Tocks Island National Recreation Area project," Calhoun testified.

Shawnee Man Hurt In Crash

ALLENTOWN — John Fetherman, 20, of Shawnee-on-Deleware, was listed in guarded condition at the Sacred Heart Hospital Monday with injuries sustained in a crash on the Lehigh Valley Thruway, north of Allentown.

Fetherman was admitted to the hospital Sunday with cuts and possible head injuries. State police at Bethlehem said he was driving east about 6:45 a.m. when his car hit a bridge abutment.

A compromise agreement was reached whereby the union's request for hospitalization and the company's request for a two-year contract were both approved. The terms include a 3.68 per cent wage increase for each year.

The meeting between company and union representatives was held at the Metropolitan Edison Co. headquarters in Reading.

Cramer: Zoning Ordinance Protects E-Burg Real Estate

(This is the third in a series of articles reviewing the Borough of East Stroudsburg's zoning ordinance.)

By Gil Murray

Daily Record Staff Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — Sterling Cramer, East Stroudsburg borough manager, interprets the borough's one-year-old zoning ordinance as being primarily directed at protecting the value of East Stroudsburg real estate.

"As the average person becomes acquainted with the advantages of this ordinance they will see it protects the value of nearly everything in the borough," Cramer said.

Two of the biggest enforcement problems that arise from the ordinance are the proper placing of signs and mobile homes (trailers), according to Carl Jones, zoning enforcement officer.

The placing of signs and trailers are strictly governed by the ordinance — which was drafted for the borough planning commission by Candeb, Cabot and Associates of Scranton, planning consultants.

Under the ordinance no advertising or flashing sign is allowed a residential area.

Name plates or identification signs in residential areas cannot be more than one square foot and must be attached to a home.

Signs advertising developments are restricted to 20 square feet and must be located on the developed property.

Other signs allowed in residential areas include sale or rental signs, institutional signs, signs denoting parking areas, directional signs, farm product signs and private driveway signs.

No advertising signs are permitted within 660 feet of the center line of a limited access highway.

No advertising sign is permitted to be located within 100 feet of any residential district.

No advertising sign is permitted to be built parallel with a street or at an angle of less than 45 degrees with the street.

No two advertising signs can be located less than 120 feet from each other when on the same street.

The location of mobile homes — a thorny problem for all zoning ordinances — is restricted to R-3 and R-4 residential areas. Or in mobile home courts in the same districts.

A visiting mobile home can stay within the borough for only 20 days out of each year.

All mobile home courts in the borough must conform to the minimum requirements of the Federal Housing Administration.

Such courts must contain a minimum of five acres, with individual trailer lots being at least 3,000 square feet.

Persons living in a trailer cannot build added enclosures exceeding 50 per cent of the floor area of the trailer.

The ordinance also restricts the sale of trailers from a court.

Locating New Junk Yards

Locating new junk yards in the borough has also been zoned out of existence by the provisions of the ordinance.

All junk yards now in the borough must conform to the following regulations:

—They shall be completely enclosed by a fence or wall at least six feet high.

—No highly inflammable or explosive material can be stored in bulk above ground, with the exception of fuel tanks or drums which are directly connected with heating appliances.

—All materials or wastes causing fumes or dust, constituting a fire hazard, or attracting rodents or insects may be stored outdoors only in enclosed containers.

—No operations are permitted which cause a general nuisance.

The act was committed on May 31 and involved a six-year-old girl, police charged.

55 Receive Diplomas At PV High

BRODHEADSVILLE — The 55-member senior class of Pleasant Valley High School in Brodheadsburg last night graduated before a "standing room only" crowd that sat with tears in their eyes and proud smiles on their faces.

Eileen Mackes, salutatorian, spoke on "Communism In Our Hemisphere."

She told the audience, "From the revolution in Russia, during the early 1900s, the prime objective in the spread of communism was to establish beachheads."

"The first beachhead was established in Russia. Others were established throughout the world with one of the latest being established in Cuba."

"Allowing this to happen the Monroe Doctrine was not enforced and made the document a 'dead letter.' We must enforce it and restore it to its rightful place," she said.

She recalled the invasion of Cuba—the Bay of Pigs—saying the United States should have provided the necessary air coverage. "Had this been done Castro and his Communist government would have been overthrown. Now the job will be a little longer and a little harder," she added.

"Foreign Aid"

Robert Davenport, valedictorian, spoke on "Foreign Aid." He suggested a new policy for foreign aid. "First we should not give aid to any Communist country. Second, we should not give aid to any country who appears to be or is known to have Communist tendencies. Third, we should not finance any socialist industry in a country known to be a communist satellite. Fourth, and last, we should not give aid to any country waging war against another country."

"Establish Goals"

Walter Sebring, assistant county superintendent of schools, pointed out that the graduating class of today should be like a politician. "You should establish goals and work toward them," Sebring said.

In his introductory statements he said, "I'm not a politician, I'm not even a member of an organized party—I'm a Republican."

Harold Everett, president of the West End Lions Club, presented the valedictorian trophy to Davenport. Mrs. Joseph Decker, representing the Pleasant Valley Parent-Teachers Council, presented the salutatorian trophy to Miss Mackes.

Roger Berger was presented the Class of 1963 scholarship by William Martucci, president of the 1963 graduating class.

Other awards went to Raylene Andrews who was given the Leighton Beauty Culture Scholarship.

Eileen Mackes received the American Assn. of University Women Scholarship.

The PTA Council of Pleasant Valley High School presented four scholarships. Receiving them were Joanne Brong, Jeffrey Hinton, Anita Burger and Susan Achey.

Commissioners To Hold Up Payment Of CD Work Bills

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners yesterday decided to hold up payment of some contracting bills until some defects in the construction of the Civil Defense facilities in the courthouse basement have been rectified.

Marvin Abel, civil defense director, presented the commissioners with bills of $2,005.02 from Hanford L. Cleveland for plumbing; $4,072.84 from B. Katz and Sons for heating and air conditioning, and $13,315.34 from Harvey Huffman for general contracting.

Abel said that some paint had blistered on the walls of the $130,000 construction and renovation project, and that some plaster had cracked due to proximity to heating pipes.

Also, he said that the air conditioning system had not been tried, and that it should run for a few days to make sure it is in proper working order.

The commissioners then decided to hold the bills until the question of responsibility for the defects are cleared up.

In other business, the commissioners agreed to take an advertisement in the West End Fair Book for 1964 at a cost of $12. George Metzger solicited the ad.

Maurice Everett of Easton submitted a total cost figure for installing a sound system in the courthouse basement of $1,965.

Charles Jones of the Children's Aid Society gave his monthly report to the board.

Boys Caught For Window-Smash Spree

STROUDSBURG — Stroudsburg Police yesterday apprehended seven juveniles, ranging in age from eight to 12, and questioned about the smashing of 50 windows in a building on Craner St.

The youths admitted breaking the windows in the building owned by Earl Granor and rented by Howard R. Imb. They also admitted leaving on the switch—and leaving it on—of a road roller stored in the building. Also admitted was the damage to the radiator of the roller.

Police said the youths broke the windows with stones and "old parts" they found lying on the ground outside the building.

Also broken were 31 windows in the Monolator building on Craner St. The youths did not admit breaking these windows.

Both acts were done during the past weekend.

Jersey Man Awaits Court

EAST STROUDSBURG — Ernest H. Grover, 38, of Hope, N.J. was remanded to the Monroe County Jail Monday to await the next term of Quarter Sessions Court. He pleaded guilty to charges of burglary and larceny before Magistrate Harold Larson Sr.

The burglary occurred two years ago on May 3 between 3:30 and 4:30 a.m. Grover reportedly stole $60 to $65 from the Lackawanna Hotel barroom at 87 Crystal St., East Stroudsburg, according to Larson.

East Stroudsburg police apprehended Grover Saturday on North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Reckless Driving Charge Filed

STROUDSBURG — Ronald W. Senger, 20, of McGuire AFB, N.J., was charged with reckless driving by Stroudsburg State Police. The charge stems from a two-car accident at 9:40 p.m. Sunday near Poconoama on Rt. 209.

The other driver in the mishap was Richard E. McCarty Jr., 49, of Northampton, police said. There were no injuries.

Damage to the Senger vehicle is estimated at $120 and $20 to the McCarty vehicle.

Individual Liberty

President Johnson yesterday criticized "phantom fears . . . that the federal government has become a major menace to individual liberty."

Speaking at the 100th anniversary of Swarthmore College, he said, "The truth is that far from crushing the individual, government at its best liberates him from the enslaving forces of his environment . . ."

This is true and it is not true.

It is true that civil rights laws passed by Congress and decisions of the federal Supreme Court free the American Negro from many legal restraints and open schools, voting booths and public restaurants to him.

At the same time the freedom of white Americans to discriminate against Negroes is limited by the federal government. That loss of freedom is a good thing in our opinion. But it is a loss of freedom.

The same thing applies to income taxes, anti-trust laws, insecticide controls, law enforcement, social security, and the whole complex of complicated federal laws, regulations, forms and orders that we live under today.

They were designed to improve American society by limiting some freedoms and giving other benefits.

There are of course, areas where more freedom is lost than benefits are gained through federal government action or controls. Some federal programs waste more money than they provide services to taxpayers.

But we agree with President Johnson that the federal government is not "a major menace to individual liberty." It is certainly growing bigger than we would like. So is private business in which the little man is slowly swallowed up by giant corporations.

Johnson was obviously speaking to Senator Barry Goldwater and his followers who believe that the federal government is gaining too much power in all fields and should have its powers limited in favor of broader state rights and autonomy.

Goldwater and many of his followers who have a vague feeling of lost freedom in a more and more complex world tend to blame the federal government for that feeling of loss without crediting it with any of the benefits of federal power and controls.

The fact is that life in America and the world today is complex and crowded and going to get a lot more so in the years to come.

Federal, state and local governments will adopt more laws which restrict more freedoms as the nation grows and living conditions become more complicated.

There will be more red lights as traffic grows, and fewer parking spaces. It is inevitable.

Republican Split

The nomination of Senator Barry Goldwater as Republican candidate for President, the end of the stop-Goldwater movement, the bust of the Scranton for President boom, and a serious split in the Republican party all seemed certain yesterday.

Former President Dwight Eisenhower said he liked Scranton, but he was unwilling to fire up a stop-Goldwater movement and no one else has the power and prestige to do so.

The Republican party is now faced with conservative Senator Barry Goldwater as its national leader while many Republican governors, senators like Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, and other candidates are afraid to run on the same ticket.

Goldwater may have won the battle against his fellow Republicans, but he has probably lost the Republican war against President Johnson and the Democratic party in the November elections.

Election Night Jitters

WASHINGTON — A solid citizen, who fancies he commands a smattering of English, listens to candidates and their campaign managers in a successful appearance throughout election night.

"The listener finally goes berserk and lifts himself by the ears, because this is what he thinks he hears:

"Quiet please! Quiet, for — Quiet! The candidate is expected any minute! The candidate is on his way here! Yes — yes — here's the candidate now! Fellow workers, a n r candidate!"

"Well, things look brighter than when I spoke to you an hour ago. We shouldn't have been downhearted. As Tom here said to me, 'Wait till the vote from the North starts coming in. Our stronghold is the North!'"

"It seems I've won, but I won't issue a victory statement yet."

"Analysis of the returns thus far indicates that this is just a temporary setback. We expected tough going in the North. Wait till the vote from the South starts coming in."

Tom, my campaigning manager — this is Tom — reminds me our great reservoir of strength is in the South."

"I never was in any real doubt about the issue, no matter what the polls said. The polls went wrong in New Hampshire, in Oregon, and now California. I always call them 'Sleeping polls' — ha! ha!"

"This isn't a victory for me. It's a victory for the people, for good government. I want to thank each and every one of you. I wish I could shake you all by the hand."

Philistine voice from the rear of campaign headquarters: "You mean you haven't?"

"If my opponent is the winner, as it appears, I will be supporting him. I have just sent him this telegram: 'Congratulations on your great victory. It was a hard fought campaign, but clean, with no personalities or — Just a minute! What's that again, Tom? Tom tells me to wait. We're getting a new picture from the East. The East, as you know, is our reservoir of strength.'"

"It's a giant step forward, but I still have a long way to go. To me, the returns can only mean that, after weighing the qualifications and the voter appeal of all the excellent candidates, the final vote inevitably has fallen to me."

The Pennsylvania Story

Scranton News Trouble

By Mason Denton
HARRISBURG — Either way you run it, you're wrong.

This is the situation that sometimes develops between public officials, bureaucrats and politicians — and the news media.

This is precisely what happened following Governor Scranton's press conference the latter part of last week.

The complaints were not from the Governor himself; in fact they could hardly be called complaints in a strict sense. Perhaps "chidings" would be more in order.

In any event, it was at this press conference that Mr. Scranton was again asked for the umpteenth time whether he would be a Republican presidential candidate, vice-presidential candidate, etc.

For the case in point, we'll center around the vice-presidential question.

This is the lead paragraph on the Associated Press story of the press conference:

"Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton said today he would reject any offer to run for the vice-presidency made by a Republican presidential candidate."

This is the lead paragraph from the other major wire service, United Press International:

"Pennsylvania Governor

William W. Scranton today rejected the possibility of a Goldwater-Scranton Republican presidential ticket."

Both wire service leads are correct and express precisely what Mr. Scranton said — but some of the more ardent Scrantonites felt it would have been better (for their cause) and would not have sounded so "harsh and closed-doorish."

If the phrase had been added "unless there is a sincere and honest draft."

This is a fine point but fine points sometimes nuzzle politicians to the gills!

Both wire service stories did point out this contingency, or qualification, in their second paragraphs but the politicians would have preferred to have it right up there in the first paragraph.

The fact remains that you can't pack everything in the first, or lead, paragraph in newspapering.

Headlines oftentimes are written on the basis of the first paragraph of a story. It provides the bite for the headline-writer.

Interestingly, many a newspaper across the state gave a banner headline to both the AP and UPI stories along this vein: "Scranton Rejects Vice-Presidency Spot."

Well, he did — and he didn't, depending on how you look at it.

Here is the question-and-answer sequence that provides one backup for the AP and UPI stories:

Reporter: "Suppose Goldwater says, I want Bill Scranton (for the vice-presidency, that is)."

Governor: "Once again I say to you that the normal procedure if the nominee decides that he wants to have somebody as Vice-President, he talks to the person he has in mind. And I have said that if this occurred in my case I would not be interested."

Interestingly, the headlines and the leads on the stories could also have read: "Scranton Will Accept Vice-Presidential Spot."

Here is the question-and-answer sequence providing the backup for this:

Reporter: "Governor, would you be available in a draft as Barry Goldwater's running mate?"

Governor: "I've said that I would accept such a draft for the presidency or vice-presidency if there was such a thing. So I guess the answer to your question is yes, if there is a draft."

Take your choice. As we said — either way you run it, you're wrong . . .

Rev. Wohlsen Recalled

The Rev. Peter N. Wohlsen, pastor emeritus of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, was the man of the hour at a recent alumni ceremonies at Muhlenberg College, Allentown.

"Peter," as he is familiarly called by his Monroe County friends, was given a standing ovation by grads at Friday's ceremonies at the new Union building on the Mules' campus.

It was a banner day for Rev. Wohlsen who renewed old acquaintances with fellow classmates and graduates that span more than 50 years at the Lutheran institution of higher learning.

Will Olds Morse survive the attack of opposition when state Democrats elect a chairman this weekend?

Morse has been busy as a bee trying to get support in each county across the 67 in the commonwealth.

However, Northampton, Pike, Carbon and Monroe haven't yet officially come out for him or for that matter dark horses offered by Sen. Joseph Clark and his camp.

The chief complaint against Morse was his howling to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh party bosses and inserting organization backing for Judge Michael Musmanno in the let's battle with Miss Genevieve Blatt for U.S. senator.

Most Clark's men felt Morse should have used promoted a hands off policy in the primary election and let the chips fall where they may in the Musmanno-Blatt runoff.

Fred Reinhold, Stroudsburg, is pushing Little League ball this year. Like many other dads who take an interest in the sport, Fred believes practice makes perfection.

The Allen-Scott Report

Air Deal Snag

Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON — Despite those published reports to the contrary, Russia — and not the U.S. — is holding up the signing of the air agreement permitting an exchange of commercial flights between Moscow and New York.

While the White House is privately prodding U.S. negotiators to reach an immediate agreement, Premier Khrushchev is stalling until his technicians iron out the bugs in their heralded new 11-62 supersonic airliner.

U.S. negotiators report that Khrushchev is delaying the signing until the Russians can cap the U.S.-Soviet air accord with a smashing propaganda victory by landing the world's first supersonic airliner in New York.

If U.S. intelligence estimates are anywhere near correct, this major air feat is still several months off, since the 1,500-mile-an-hour 11-62 is plagued with both mechanical and equipment troubles.

The 200-passenger plane is reportedly having serious difficulty taking off and landing with less than half the fuel needed to fly to the U.S. from Moscow.

There have been so many equipment failures on the Soviet airliner while in the air that it now takes an average of a week to overhaul the huge plane after each flight. Without this inch-by-inch checking, the four-engine jet would be unsafe for flying long distances.

In sharp contrast, Pan American Airways, which will serve as the U.S. commercial carrier, is ready now to use its fully tested pure-jet Boeing 707 on the run.

The sleek 707, in operational use for several years, can make the non-stop flight in about 8½ hours eastbound and 10 hours westbound, or a full two to four hours less than the TU-144 — the best Soviet plane now in operation.

By pressing into service the new four-jet 11-62, the Russians expect to cut their air time from Moscow to New York in half — giving Aeroflot, their government airline, a big speed advantage over the Pan American jet.

Reverse Engines — Senator Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., most outspoken opponent of the proposed air agreement, is taking advantage of Khrushchev's haggling to petition President Johnson to call off the negotiations.

In a memorandum to the White House, Senator Dodd expressed the hope that the President "will pause to weigh the potential disadvantages of the proposed agreement against any conceivable advantages before we commit ourselves to a course which, I am certain, we will live to regret."

He pointed out that Russia will use the new air rights to step up its espionage activities in the U.S., warning:

"The Russian embassy and UN staffs number several hundred people. If they could shuttle between New York and Moscow twice a week in their old planes, think of how much secret material, military information gathered for them by their friends and operations in this country, they could leak away without detection. They would be able to carry away tons of so-called 'diplomatic mail.'"

"If the U.S. goes through with the signing of the agreement," Dodd stressed, "all Latin American countries will follow suit, making the task of fighting Communist subversion and espionage in these countries almost impossible."

No Justification — Dodd charged that the air agreement cannot be justified "in terms of Soviet tourist traffic to the U.S., because in recent years this has amounted to less than 150 persons a year."

"On the other hand," he pointed out, "American tourist traffic to the Soviet Union in 1963 ran approximately 15,000. In order to operate commercial flights to the U.S. on a profitable basis, Aeroflot would have to bid for a substantial chunk of this U.S. tourist traffic."

While President Johnson has not yet replied to Dodd's memorandum, Ambassador Foy Kohler is still pushing the negotiations. He is trying to get the Russians to sign the pact before they make one with Canada.

The Soviet-Canadian agreement, giving the Russians a direct air route to Montreal, is scheduled to be announced in July.

Under its announced terms, a Canadian airline will be permitted to fly to Moscow via Peking, as well as directly to Russia.

Mother's Work Never Done

By Abigail Van Buren
DEAR ABBY: Every Mother's Day my married children "honor" me by bringing their families to me to feed. This Mother's Day I had 22 here.

All the men played cards, and the girls sat in the living room laughing and gossiping while I was in the kitchen doing all the work. Pa helped me dry the dishes. I love my children and grandchildren, but I am getting too old to work like this. If I am still around next year, how can I let them know that I would rather not be "honored" like this again without hurting their feelings?

Speaking Of Your Health:

Let's Talk About Emphysema

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Q: What is emphysema?
A: Derived from the Greek, emphysema means "over-inflated." In this lung condition, changes occur in the structure of the tiny air sacs in the lung. Normally these air sacs have a spring-like recoil, vital to the process of oxygen consumption.

In emphysema, the air sacs become enlarged and lose their rebound.

Q: Does this disease affect people of all ages?
A: It occurs only occasionally in the young. Middle-aged people, generally, are more prone to emphysema. It occurs more frequently in men than in women.

Q: Is it in any way related to asthma?
A: Repeated attacks of asthma, bronchitis, pneumonia make patients more susceptible to emphysema.

Q: No Self-Diagnosis
A: Because symptoms of all respiratory and lung ailments are often so similar, no self-diagnosis of emphysema should be made.

Q: How does one find out if he has emphysema?
A: A patient should not consult a doctor to "find out" if he has emphysema, cancer or tuberculosis of the lung. Rather, he should consult a physician to determine the cause of chronic cough or shortness of breath, or any other prolonged or persistent respiratory symptoms.

Accurate diagnosis of emphysema and other respiratory conditions can be definitely established by x-rays, breathing tests and sputum examination.

Q: Is emphysema curable?
A: When the breathing discomfort of emphysema has lasted for a long time, the likelihood is that changes in the lung structure have already been established. Treatment, therefore, is devoted to the patient's relief and to the retardation of the progress of emphysema.

Allergies must be carefully studied and respiratory infections reduced to a minimum. Antibiotics are used with discrimination to prevent the complications of simple lung infection.

Methods Of Treatment

Q: Are there any new or special methods of treatment?
A: Yes. Controlled oxygen treatment called "intermittent positive pressure breathing" is used with breathing and posture exercises. Special drugs and detergent mists help bring welcome relief.

Q: Does diet affect emphysema?
A: Not directly. Excess weight places an extra and unnecessary burden on the lungs and the heart of an emphysema patient.

Q: Are normal activities restricted by this disease?
A: Work and play done in moderation can be safe and comfortable.

Total Rehabilitation
Physicians are interested in the total rehabilitation of patients.

Patients with emphysema can be helped. Despair can now be replaced with hope, if the condition is vigorously treated.

Eye Afflictions
Are glaucoma and cataract the same, or are they in any way related?

Glaucoma and cataract are two totally different conditions and are in no way related to each other.

A cataract is a cloudiness of the lens of the eye. Glaucoma is an increase of the fluid pressure within the eye.

It should be a source of great comfort to anybody with these conditions to know that intensive medical and surgical care gratifyingly preserves the vision in most instances. Testing the "eye pressure" now is part of every complete eye examination.

Stories Behind Words

Drunk as a Lord
Excessive social drinking reached its peak in England during the 18th century. At that time a man of fashion was judged by how many bottles of wine he could drink.

Some of this competitive drinking took place at the palaces or manor houses, but the bulk of it occurred in London's private clubs of which the nobles, especially the younger ones, were members.

These drinking bouts almost always ended with all the participants hopelessly drunk. Since the male members of the nobility were called lords, the expression "drunk as a lord" was used to describe anyone in an intoxicated stupor.

Swiftwater Man Files Suit For $175,000 Over Crash

SCRANTON — A Swiftwater man has instituted a $175,000 suit in Federal Court in Scranton against the Hess Oil Co. of Perth Amboy, N.J. and one of its truck drivers.

The suit, filed by Atty. Edwin Krawitz on behalf of Kenneth F. Wescott, claims a Hess oil tanker, driven by William M. Crostley of Phillipsburg, N.J., collided with a car driven by Wescott on Rt. 611 in Mt. Pocono during March, 1963.

The suit alleges the oil tanker crossed over the center line of the highway because it was operated in a reckless, careless and negligent manner.

Wescott claims the accident caused him permanent and painful injuries to the neck, back and spinal column.

He claims he was completely incapacitated as a result of the accident and has been unable to return to work. The suit states Wescott may never be able to go back to work as a lineman for the Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.

Inactivity At Park Questioned

STROUDSBURG — Directors of the Monroe County Soil and Water Conservation District questioned reasons for Park Commission activity on the Flagler Run Park project at their recent meeting.

Boyd Kinzley from the state Soil Conservation Commission was present.

A state convention at Mt. Airy Lodge in November was also discussed.

Application for conservation plans were approved from William Baumgartner, Clarence T. Bush, William Weiss, Pocono Art Center, C. K. Lester, Frederick Boyden, Joseph Lisicky, Detleff and Lorene Hansen, and William Riday.

Sen. Scott Supports Project 70

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — Voting activity on the part of Pennsylvania's lawmakers during the past week was extremely limited — no voting in the House inasmuch as that chamber was in recess during the week while in the Senate there was voting on only one bill.

The lone bill on which the Senate voted was Senate Bill 4, the Administration-backed "Project 70" enabling legislation designed to start the fiscal ball rolling on acquisition of parkland in 43 of the State's 67 counties ($10,000,000), establish a $20,000,000 matching fund for development of local parks, and $10,000,000 for new hunting and fishing areas in the State.

On this bill, which cleared the upper chamber 46-3, area Senator William Z. Scott, Lansford, Republican, voted in favor of the legislation.

4 Escape Injury In Accident

STROUDSBURG — Four persons escaped injury in a two-car accident at 7:05 p.m. recently on Rt. 196 near Ananook.

According to Lester C. Rice, Stroud Twp. assistant chief of police, a northbound Rt. 196 vehicle driven by Wesley J. Van Why, 52, of 20 S. Kistler St., East Stroudsburg, was attempting to make a left turn when the collision occurred.

The other vehicle was driven by James A. Charron, 17, of Bartonsville. The passenger in the Charron vehicle was Stanley Bush, 15, of East Stroudsburg, RD 3. Peter Fish of 65 Penn St., East Stroudsburg was a passenger in the VanWhy vehicle.

Considerable damage is estimated to both cars police said.

Two Committed To Local Jail

STROUDSBURG — Two men were committed to the Monroe County Jail Monday for five days after pleading guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct before Floyd W. Kellogg. The charges stem from a Saturday morning fight on Main St., Stroudsburg.

Joseph J. Rehm Jr., 19, of 467 Lincoln Ave., East Stroudsburg and James H. Kisbaugh, 21, of 129 N. 2nd St., Stroudsburg were committed in default of $15 fine and cost each.

Correction

EAST STROUDSBURG — The Thomas Waring Memorial Scholarship Award, which was given Sunday to Douglas Hilgard at East Stroudsburg's commencement exercises, was inadvertently listed as the Thomas L. Merring Award in Monday's newspaper.

The award, sponsored by the Varsity "E" Club, now totals $250.

The Tom Waring Award to the athlete with the highest scholastic average went to Frederick Leaman, a ninth grade wrestler.

"What you don't know about car insurance can cost you money," says Nationwide

Nationwide Insurance reveals some little known facts to help you get better protection for less money — if you're a careful driver.

AMERICANS spend $6 billion a year on car insurance. Yet most people hardly know a thing about what they're buying.

Nationwide agents make a point of giving their customers all the facts, and we believe in doing the same thing in our advertising. Here are answers to some of the most often-asked questions about car insurance.

1. Will I get the same rates from all companies?
No. You may be surprised to learn that there is a considerable difference between companies.

Some companies such as the Nationwide companies are much fussier than others about whom they insure. They accept only people with good driving records. As a result, they can charge less because they have fewer accident claims to pay.

If you're looking for car insurance, be sure to talk to a Nationwide man. There's a good chance he can offer a better deal on car insurance than his competition.

2. Are there different ways of figuring my rates? Yes. Few people realize there are two kinds of rating plans. They are "non-variable" and "variable."

"Non-variable" is the most popular kind. Your policy is based on flat rates which do not depend on your driving record.

"Variable" is the "merit-demerit" plan. The more accidents you have, the higher your rates. The fewer accidents, the lower your rates.

Here in Pennsylvania, the Nationwide companies sell both kinds.

3. Why do men under 25 pay such high rates? Drivers in this age group have a much higher percentage of accidents than drivers in any other age group. And these young drivers have worse accidents, too.

Note: Nationwide knows that not all males under 25 are careless drivers. We were the first insurance company to offer lower rates to young men who complete a qualified driver training course.

4. What factors besides age affect rates? Several. The year of your car. Your occupation. The size of your town. How much you use your car. These things all count.

Keep your agent up-to-date on all points. For example, be sure to tell him if you move. Many people don't, and are paying a lot more than they should for car insurance.

5. Can a careful driver save money? Yes. A person with a good driving record can almost always qualify for insurance with a company like Nationwide. Nationwide can save a careful driver as much as $40 a year, or more.

6. How do companies decide who's a careful driver? As yet no company has come up with a foolproof way of deciding. However, we are finding that careful drivers have certain things in common. For instance, they drive less than 20 miles to and from work. They've been in the same line of work for the past five years. And they're married.

Some of these things may not seem to have much to do with how well you drive, but we find they go together with an accident-free driving record.

7. Do women drivers pay less than men? Women over 25 pay the same as men. Women under 25 pay anywhere from 10 to 63 percent less than men in this age group. The reason? Young women have fewer accidents than young men. Our records prove it!

8. Why have my rates gone up even though I've never had an accident? Because insurance companies are paying out more money in claims than ever before. How come? There are more cars on the road than ever before (about 22 cars for every mile of road). There are more accidents per 100 cars. Cars cost more to repair. Juries are awarding bigger settlements.

As long as insurance companies have to pay out more, they have to take in more. Result: you pay higher rates.

9. What if I'm hit by a driver with no insurance? You can now buy insurance that will protect you if this happens. It's called Uninsured Motorists Coverage. You can add this protection to a Nationwide policy for just a few dollars.

10. Do some insurance companies offer faster claim service than others? Yes. But most companies today offer excellent claim service. They have to or they wouldn't stay in business.

Nationwide is the second largest mutual car insurer in the world. We think one reason we've gotten so big is that we pay over half of all our claims within 24 hours after proof of loss. Nearly two-thirds of all claims within 72 hours.

Amazing record for fast claim settlement

We believe our Nationwide drive-in claims station in Columbus holds the world record for fast payment.

A man driving in for a damage estimate misjudged the distance between his car and our doorway. The result: a fresh crease in his fender.

Time between accident and payment — four minutes.

11. Do all insurance companies have drive-in claims stations? No. Only a few. Nationwide introduced the country's first drive-in claims station in 1954. We now have them in 48 cities. They are saving people time and trouble.

12. Can I lower my rates? There's a good chance you can. Here are some things you can do:

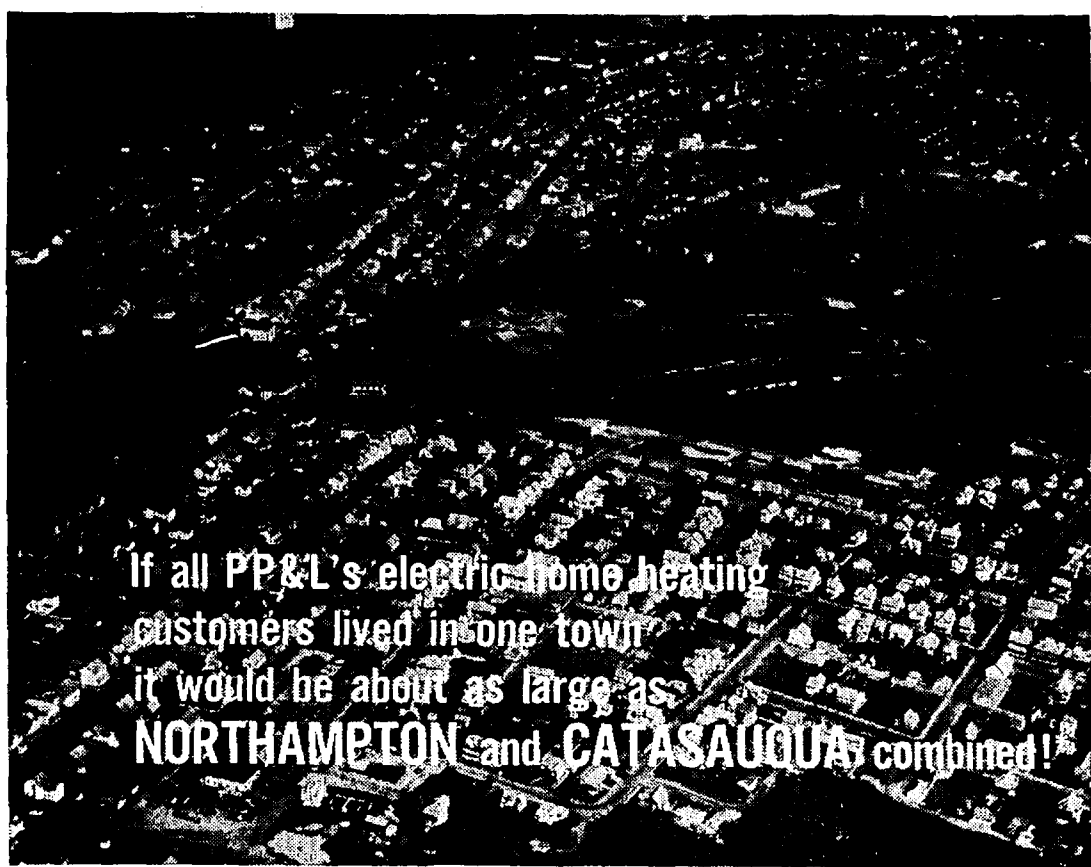

- Take a larger deductible amount on your collision coverage. This will lower your premium. Example: collision coverage with $100 deductible may cost you 25 to 30 percent less than the same coverage with $50 deductible.
- If you have a boy in high school who drives your car, enroll him in his school's driver training course. This may lower your liability rates 5 to 15 percent.
- If you own two cars, be sure they are both insured with the same company. You may get a discount. Nationwide generally offers a 10 percent discount for both cars.
- If you think you're a careful driver, and you have a good driving record, be sure to give Nationwide a try. You may find that you can save some of your hard-earned money.

If you have any questions that are not answered in this advertisement, check the Yellow Pages for the number of a Nationwide agent.

He'll give you the same kind of no-nonsense answers that you've been reading here.

Just Between Us —

It was a cozy weekend with the rain on the roof and dripping the river, but when your company came hoping to get a Pocono tan, it was a little frustrating.

Except maybe to Mrs. Clifford Kintner and Mrs. John Lesoine. Seems Peter Lesoine had dumped a load of stones on the driveway to the river but hadn't had time to spread it. Unwilling to wait for the men to get home, the two wives decided to do it themselves.

And that's where they were when I was heading home with a load of groceries. For a moment I thought I was back in Yugoslavia where the women do a lot of the roadwork. Both of the women admitted that the job of spreading rocks was a much harder than it looks, but unfortunately I had to get those groceries in the refrigerator so I couldn't accept their invitation to find out for myself. And then the rains came.

Don't know whether Ruth Paxton Shook brought the rain with her from Florida but the sight of her was as welcome as the sunshine when you've got to make a dash for the car. It was almost a reunion of the famous quartet of which she was a member on Main St. last night.

The rain I can cope with, but I'm sort of getting downed under the flood of weddings, all of which, I hope, took place sometime between the showers.

Miss Alice Faye Anderson Is Bride Of Joel Huffman

Mrs. Joel Elwood Huffman
(Sterling Studios)

East Berlin, Pa. — Lance Corporal Joel Elwood Huffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey W. Huffman, Marshalls Creek took as his bride Miss Alice Faye Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Anderson of East Berlin RD 1 on Saturday, May 23, at 4:30 p.m.

They were married in St. Andrews United Church of Christ at Penbrook, Harrisburg. Rev. Dr. A. M. Billman performed the double ring ceremony before a candlelit altar which was decorated with large white mums.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sheath dress of champagne peau de sole, designed with a scalloped portrait neckline, cap sleeves and a bodice of Chantilly lace with two small bows at the waist. A crown of champagne nylon tulle petals held her shoulder-length veil. She wore matching accessories and carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid, ribbon streamers, small white carnations and lilies of the valley.

Miss Betsy Hayden of Hatfield as maid of honor wore a sky-blue sheath with matching accessories and carried a colonial bouquet of red and white carnations.

Gail and Kevin Anderson, niece and nephew of the bride, served as acolytes.

Best man was L. Peter Carron of Teaneck, N. J., with Randall Huffman, brother of the bridegroom, and Albert Plano, Philadelphia, serving as ushers.

A reception was held following the wedding at Eichleberg's House in the Woods, Mechanicsburg. The couple will reside in Washington, D. C. where Lance Corporal Huffman is stationed with the U.S. Marine Corps.

Reservations Mounting For Laurel Buffet and Ball Fri.

Pocono Manor—Reservations for this year's Candlelight Buffet and Laurel Ball are mounting. One of the highlights of the Laurel Blossom Festival, the ball will be held Friday night at Pocono Manor Inn.

Proceeds from the party will be used for the Burnley Workshop for the Handicapped.

The Valley View Room has been reserved for guests at the buffet which will be served, starting at 6:45 in the dining room and ending at 8.

Dancing to the music of Lou Hayward's Orchestra will begin at 9 p.m. in the Terrace Ballroom.

The Festival Committee is planning a number of surprise innovations. The Laurel Royal Court of 23 Princesses will be introduced during the evening. John Crandall and LeRoy Dengler, Festival chairmen, predict a "better than ever" ball.

Open to the public, reservations for the buffet and ball or, for those who don't want to stay for the dance, for the buffet only may be made by calling Pocono Manor Inn, Extension 56. No reservations need to be made for the ball, only, since tickets will be sold at the ballroom entrance that night.

Reception For New Members, Present Pastor

Bartonsville — Persons who were received into the membership of Wesley Chapel during the past year were honored and Pastor Joseph Leggeri was welcomed back for another year at a reception held at the church social hall, 60 persons were present.

The group decided to have the next reunion in five years.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

It is a wonderful thing . . . and a terrible thing . . . to work in a department store. Seeing so many intriguing things each day for yourself, your family, friends and home, you are reminded that having money must indeed be a highly desirable state of affairs. Yet whether or not you can buy, you see much that you can appreciate and enjoy.

Watching Sandy Wyckoff inspecting and ticketing the beautiful Vanity Fair-lingerie that arrived in our Wyckoff receiving room last week, I was happy that she, and not I, is the bride-to-be of our store family. "It's beautiful," I said, "and I'll bet you wish you owned one of everything you're marking, don't you?"

Sandy smiled and nodded. Truth is, the lovely, filmy lingerie in luscious colors such as we carry here at Wyckoff's is enough to put stars in ANY woman's eyes. And when that woman already has stars in her eyes, it's absolutely overwhelming!

Our store was so busy Friday, it was almost like a carnival—gray, boisterous, and bustling. As usual, our tea room was one of the busiest places of all, and the daily special was one of the reasons why: for 59c you could enjoy a truly excellent menu consisting of salmon loaf with sauce, potato, and salad.

After a while, one of our waitresses (Esther Ford) became a bit weary of being called. "I think I'll change my name," she mused. "I'm not going to answer to 'Esther' any more."

"Okay," Smiley, one of her co-workers agreed, "maybe we should call you Henry." Personally, I think this would be an excellent idea. After all, being Henry Ford was a pretty lucky situation for one certain person . . . wasn't it?

When I thanked Mrs. John Rumsey and her quilters from Zion Lutheran Church, Middle Smithfield, for coming into our Keystone Room to participate in Quilts and Crafts Week, she replied that they were happy to help put their little church on the map before it is submerged in 100 feet of water.

It really breaks my heart when I think of the many old and lovely buildings—homes, churches, mills, and other historic buildings, that are faced by a watery fate in the interests of progress. I presume you feel the same. I only wish my shoulders were broad enough and my arms strong enough to pick them all up and whisk them to a safe place.

The Zion Lutheran ladies were hemming a truly precious crib quilt made for one of the Rumsey grandchildren. And there was so much interest in their activities that they left me (and the same is true of the Grace Lutheran Church ladies) lined up enough work to keep them happily busy for ages.

One of our cutest shoppers Friday was Lee Ann Mitchell, four year old grandchild of Harold Albert, who was quickly seated upon a stool in our housewares department when a customer inadvertently knocked over a collection of aluminum molds. "I didn't do it," she sang out, "I didn't do it. She did . . ."

Harold said she was singing in self preservation since she is all too frequently scolded for mishaps when Grandpa is around.

Cy Barrett Says

Fanatic Golfer

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:
All I want to do is play golf! I am captain of our high school golf team. I have won some amateur tournaments and think, with practice, I could play as well as some pros on the tour. Playing golf is my one great love, and I want to get into it as the pro at a club or public course. What would be your opinion of me becoming a member of the P.G.A. and going into golf as a career?

DEAR MILLARD:

Any golfer with as many rounds in his bag as you have should know this career has a split personality. There is golf the game and golf the business. A fanatic desire to play golf is a poor prerequisite for the job of club or course pro.

Today's non-tour professional golfer must be a businessman, merchandiser, instructor and public relations expert. The career is as technical as many other professions and you don't suddenly announce to the world you are joining the Professional Golfers' Association.

In 1946 there were 2,168 members of this august body. Today there are 5,200 but don't let the growth in numbers fool you. With offices at Dunedin Florida, it includes such notables as Walter Hagen and Robert T. Jones Jr., who keep the entrance requirements high. Besides being over 21 years of age and a citizen, you'll need a total of five years' experience in professional golf.

the head professional of a recognized golf club or course... or head professional at the same type of location. Or qualify by getting time in as an approved P.G.A. tournament player. If it's a club or course professional golfer's job you are after... don't expect to see much long grass.

DEAR CY:

Glad to hear the major baseball leagues are granting scholarships to young players, as reported in your column. The problem here is that my son doesn't know the first thing about baseball. How can he get a badly needed college scholarship, Cy?

MRS. MONTGOMERY

DEAR MRS. MONTGOMERY:
Enclosed is a copy of my new "Sources of Information on College Scholarships." It lists some old stand-bys, like Lovejoy-Jones College Scholarship Guide and rook books such as "How to Win a College Scholarship" by Turner and Tarr. P.S.: Any other readers desiring a free copy have only to write me, c-o this newspaper.

DEAR CY:

You are an eye opener. I never realized I could obtain part-time work through a temporary help service. Are they the same as employment agencies? Would I have to kick in a big fee to a temporary work service?

MISS BEA

DEAR MISS BEA:

Temporary help services are not employment agencies. These organizations are the actual employers of unskilled, semi-skilled and technical help. As such, they pay and provide fringe benefits to part-time employees and invoice client businesses for services rendered. Bills rendered clients are for work time plus a small fee. Since these services are usually volume operations, the amount added is minimal. It does not come out of the worker's wallet or handbag.

President, V.P. Succession Amended By Proposed Law

By Congressional Quarterly WASHINGTON (CQ) — President, Congressmen, lawyers, editors and the general public have argued for years over what the Founding Fathers intended be done in the event of a President's inability to carry out the duties of his office.

Constitutional language on the subject is vague and Congress has never acted in the matter.

A Senate subcommittee came up recently with a proposed constitutional amendment which spells out the procedures to be followed if the President is disabled. It also ensures that the country would never be without a Vice President.

On May 27 the Senate Constitutional Amendments Subcommittee reported to the full Judiciary Committee a bill (S. J. Res. 139), sponsored by Subcommittee Chairman Birch Bayh (D Ind.), which fills in the gaps of Article II, Section 1, Clause 6 of the Constitution on Presidential disability.

Under Bayh's constitutional amendment, if there were a vacancy in the Vice Presidency, the President would nominate a Vice President and a majority of Congress would approve the selection.

Veep Takes Over

If the President were unable to carry out his duties, but did not so declare in writing, S. J. Res. 139 permits the Vice President to take over the duties of the Presidency with the approval of a majority of the Cabinet or some other body designated by Congress.

To regain his duties, the President would have only to declare in writing his intention to do so.

If the Vice President and Cabinet majority disagreed on the President's ability to resume his functions, Congress would settle the issue. A two-thirds vote would be necessary for the Vice President to continue as Acting President.

S. J. Res. 139 also settles the question of whether a Vice President taking over in the event of a President's disability assumes the "office" or the "powers and duties."

There is general agreement that he assumes the "powers and duties" and this is what S. J. Res. 139 provides.

Succession Involved

The provision for filling vacancies in the Vice Presidency is a new approach to the problem of succession. The 1947 succession law which places the Speaker of the House of Representatives and the President Pro Tempore next in line of succession has caused a good deal of controversy in recent months.

Bayh believes having a Vice President at all times would make it unlikely that the Speaker ever would have to assume the Presidency, unless both the President and Vice President died at the same time. Thus, there would be no need to change the Presidential succession laws as has been proposed by many. Such a change has little chance of passing the House since Speaker John W. McCormack (D Mass.) is not encouraging the idea.

Dual Vacancy

Disability and Vice Presidential vacancies should be tied together, Bayh believes, because with the Vice Presidency vacant and a President disabled, the Speaker would have to resign from Congress even if he took over for the President for only a few hours. His resignation from Congress is required under the terms of 1947 law.

SIMCA 1000—This versatile, little sedan made history recently when it became the first economy import to be offered in this country with a 5-year/50,000-mile guarantee. Simca 1000 is Chrysler Corporation's Parisian import. Local dealer is Jolley's Auto Exchange, W. Main St., Stroudsburg.

Simca Owner Describes Car's Performance As 'Unbelievable'

"It's unbelievable... the improvement in the all new 1964 Simca 1000. This little power house of comfort, compactness, economy and instant response far surpasses my other two Simcas (1959 and 1962)... or any other car I've ever owned for that matter," writes Miss Wealthy J. Kertz, of 451 Youngwood Drive, East Stroudsburg. "Although I was a confirmed Simca owner—at first I'll admit—the completely new body styling and rear engine ended my interest in the Simca. Then I test drove the new Simca! Wow... I was really impressed! Words can't describe the surprise I got. This car is truly unbelievable.

"The go power of this little 4-cylinder demon and its eager responsiveness is absolutely fantastic. It certainly makes driving a pleasure and its complete charm can only be realized by taking the wheel on the open road and driving through town. My first tank full of gas gave me more than 33 miles to the gallon. You can't beat that for economy—especially when 9.5 gallons of regular gasoline can take you better than 300 miles. "The economy, comfort and ease of handling will make the 12,000 to 15,000 miles I drive a year fun miles. The new Simca is most assuredly on my 'travel' list and I think everyone interested in a small car should give it a test run before making any final decisions about buying a small car. Anyone who's driving more and enjoying it less should really try the new Simca," Miss Kertz told Jolley's Auto Exchange, where she purchased her new Simca.

Waste Disposal Problem In Pen Argyl, Gross Feels

PEN ARGYL — Harold Gross is the newest member of the Pen Argyl council. He was appointed to council in February to fill the unexpired term of the late Lester Finkbeiner.

"I have not been on council long enough to say too much, but there is one problem I think council should look into and that is the method of garbage disposal in the area," Gross said.

"I am of the opinion that Pen Argyl, along with other communities in the State Belt area, should sit down and discuss the possibility of a joint undertaking in construction and operating an incinerator.

"But the idea is no good unless several communities band together on this because it is too expensive for one community. I am well aware that a plant

Two Women Passengers Injured In 2-Car Crash

STROUDSBURG — Two women passengers were hurt in a two-car accident on Rt. 402 six miles north of East Stroudsburg at 10:05 p.m. over the weekend.

Darlene Kenimer, 15, of East Stroudsburg, RD 3 was treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County for a bruised left shoulder and Hannelore Cunningham was held overnight for observation and was released Sunday, according to Stroudsburg State Police.

Terrill Wins Scholarship

EAST STROUDSBURG — Grant Terrill, son of Mrs. Avora E. Terrill, RD 2, East Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, has been awarded a scholarship to Antioch College, at Yellow Springs, Ohio, where he has been admitted to the School of Architecture and Design.

Terrill, a senior at East Stroudsburg Senior High School, was a member of the decoration committees for the Junior Prom, the Junior and senior plays.

He has served as the manager for both wrestling and track, was chosen a Youth of the Month during his senior year and was elected to the National Honor Society.

He is a member of the Library Staff, The Eastburger Staff and the Quantitative Analysis Chemistry Club.

Mrs. Cox Honored

PORTLAND — Mrs. Olive Cox who has been organist at the Portland Baptist Church for many years, was honored at a covered dish supper in recognition of her services as organist.

Mrs. Cox was presented with a corsage of orchids by members of the congregation.

A social engagement was enjoyed after the supper. A film was shown by Rev. Norman Lake, pastor of the church.

Car Skids At Redmond Plant

EAST STROUDSBURG — Damage estimated at $150 was reported to an Allentown woman's auto at 6:25 p.m. Sunday when the car skidded on the wet interborough bridge and hit a utility pole.

Linda L. Miller, 21, of 940 Maple St., Allentown was identified by East Stroudsburg police as the driver. She was not hurt, police said.

According to police, Miller was traveling north on Brown Street when the car skidded, hit the curb and then hit the pole in front of the Redmond Finishing Co.

Bangor Woman Hurt In Crash

WIND GAP — A 22-year old Bangor woman received chest injuries and multiple cuts when her car rammed a utility pole on Broadway in Wind Gap early Saturday morning.

Wind Gap police said Wanda Olt apparently fell asleep and her car went out of control, mounted the curb and struck the pole.

She was taken to St. Luke's Hospital in Bethlehem after being treated at the scene by Dr. Robert Dreher of Wind Gap.

Forty years ago, Washington had only one real suburb, Chevy Chase, Md.

such as this is expensive, but the problem of garbage disposal is, and will continue, getting bigger each year," Gross concluded.

Gross also favors any move to get industry into Pen Argyl, and the action the former council took in installing a sewage system.

"Right now, the only industry we have in Pen Argyl is the state quarries and the garment workers. State used to a big commodity but modern times has replaced its use and the result is that the industry is not employing enough men to meet the economic stature of the community.

"The garment industry has been a great help to the area, but here the employees are mostly women. The railroad yard (Lehigh and New England) is closed down, but the buildings still stand and they would make a fine place for business to locate," Gross said.

Tamko Heads Barrett's New Unit

CANADENSIS — The second meeting of the Barrett Community welfare Council was held at the Canadensis Church Cottage, with the Rev. Vernon Murray presiding.

The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers so that proper authorization could be immediately procured.

All the civic and religious clubs in Barrett Twp. were represented.

The following officers were elected: Robert Tomko, president; Mrs. Leon Meyung, Jr., vice president; Mrs. Carl Texter, secretary, and Clyde Gierse, treasurer.

The new president read rules necessary for the organization. The executive board will review the by-laws and state regulations pertaining to the organization and report to the membership.

No Injuries In West End Crash

SAYLORSBURG — A two-car, rear end collision Sunday night on old Rt. 115 in Saylorsburg resulted in $175 in damage.

State Police at Stroudsburg reported a car operated by Clarence W. Buskirk, 48, of Stroudsburg, RD 4, ran into the rear of a car driven by George Ace, 24, of 31 Fulton St., East Stroudsburg.

Police said Ace had just pulled onto the highway and Buskirk was unable to stop his car. There were no injuries.

BEN JOSEPHSON, managing director of Tamiment-in-the-Poconos, welcoming U.S. Senator Hugh D. Scott, Jr. (Pa.) guest speaker at the 31st annual convention commander's banquet of the Jewish War Veterans Department of Pennsylvania, at Tamiment over the weekend. Sen. Scott addressed the delegates on the foreign and domestic problems facing the Senate at present.

Juveniles Held In Thefts

STROUDSBURG — A 17-year old and two 16-year old juveniles all from the State Belt were apprehended for a series of thefts last week by Donald Rohn, Bushkill Twp. chief of police.

Chief Rohn said yesterday he apprehended the 17-year old who was driving a stolen car in Plainfield Twp. The youth later indicated the other juveniles.

The trio admitted breaking into Elmer Rinehart's Garage on West Main St., Stroudsburg, where they took about $450 worth of tools. They also admitted taking a set of tires and rims from a new car at Rodenbaugh's Garage in Brodheadsburg; seven gas thefts in the Plainfield Twp. area and a set of hub caps from Bangor Mills in Pen Argyl.

The trio will face Northampton County juvenile court action this month. Meanwhile, the two younger youths were released in their parents custody and the older youth was confined to a detention home in Easton.

Jailed 5 Days On Topsy Charge

STROUDSBURG — Harold E. Drake, 69, of Easton was sentenced to five days in the Monroe County Jail on a charge of public intoxication. He was unable to pay a fine and costs.

Drake, who was arrested by Stroudsburg police, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Floyd W. Kellogg in Stroudsburg.

Mrs. Dorothy Perry, 38, wife of Charles Perry, of 859 Thomas St., told Stroudsburg police she parked the car and was not in the vehicle when the accident occurred.

Funeral Critics Assessed

POCONO MANOR — Funeral service critics believe a funeral has no value beyond disposal of the dead body and measure it in dollars and cents as a business transaction only.

That assessment of funeral critics was made by Howard C. Raether, executive secretary of the National Funeral Directors Assn. at a meeting of 125 members of the Pennsylvania Funeral Directors Assn. at Pocono Manor last weekend.

Must Preserve Them
"Most people want to retain present funeral customs and practices and it is up to funeral directors to preserve them by holding in esteem these ceremonies and rituals and pointing out the values of the funeral to those who survive," Raether said.

He urged funeral directors to strive for professional status not only by their actions, but also by increasing educational standards, in-service and post-graduate training and funeral service seminars.

Mervin C. Stover, NFDA district governor, said the association gained stature and recognition in the past year for its answers to criticisms of funeral practices "by emphasizing the philosophy, purpose and value of the traditional funeral."

He said more than 8,000 clergymen have attended NFDA-sponsored meetings with funeral directors.

Stover said NFDA will soon release a special film on the funerals of Presidents Lincoln, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and John F. Kennedy.

Less Money Spent
During the meetings, John Henderson of Johnstown was elected president of the Pennsylvania Funeral Directors Assn. and Joseph Brennan of Carbonale, secretary-treasurer.

In a statement on the cost of funerals in America today, Lawrence V. Fairhall of the Roy Bernard Co. said, "Spending devoted to funeral and burial expenses has been shrinking because other kinds of personal consumer expenditures have been increasing much more rapidly."

In a study for the National Selected Morticians, Fairhall found that less than one half of one per cent of total personal consumption expenditures was spent for funeral and burial expenses in 1962 compared to three-fourths of one per cent in 1936.

PUT A TIGER IN YOUR TANK!

NEW POWER-FORMULA ESSO EXTRA GASOLINE BOOSTS POWER THREE WAYS:

- 1 Cleaning Power! Dirt can clog even a new carburetor in a few months of normal operation—causing hard starting and rough idling. Your very first tankful of New Esso Extra will start to clear away these deposits—in new engines or old—to improve power and mileage.
- 2 Firing Power! Spark plug and cylinder deposits can cause misfiring, pre-ignition and hot spots. New Esso Extra neutralizes these harmful deposits—to help your engine fire smoothly, to help preserve the power of new cars and restore lost power to many older cars.
- 3 Octane Power! New Esso Extra has the high octane that most cars now need for full smooth performance without knocking. You'll get all these extras with New Power-formula Esso Extra gasoline—it puts a tiger in your tank! Happy Motoring!

BEAUTYREST IS DIFFERENT BEAUTYREST IS BETTER!

ORDINARY MATTRESSES have 200 to 300 wired-together springs. Push one down, and the other nearby springs sag down too. They can't support body follows... give a "hammock" kind of sleep.

BEAUTYREST has over 800 individual springs, not tied together... each in a separate cloth pocket. Each spring works independently to push up under the back... give firm, buoyant support to all parts of the body.

BEAUTYREST LASTS LONGER, 3 times longer than ordinary connected coil mattresses in durability tests conducted by the National Consumers Testing Institute, Inc., proven not just once, but over and over again.
